What can we do to prevent intake?

How can we reduce the numbers of homeless cats and dogs and the concerns the community has about them? How can we keep people and their pets together? How can companion animal management and sheltering be looked at from a broader perspective? How can we empower owners, carers and those without pets to be a part of the solutions?

These, and many more questions relating to community welfare, animal welfare, and responsible pet ownership will be discussed at this event. Cutting edge industry policy & practice, research & innovations, community safety & education, problem solving, networking and more will be covered at this leading national conference for companion animal management and welfare.

Attendance at this conference is essential for everyone involved in companion animal policy and practice -including those working in all levels of government, the not for profit welfare, shelter and rescue sector, the research, academic and veterinary professions and the pet industry.

You will not find a more economical and professional development training solution for yourself or your team.
